THE WORLD BANK SAYS:

"The World Bank Group greatly values its longstanding collaboration with the IRF, whose rigorous and comprehensive World Road Statistics form a prime basis for the transport services data compiled in our annual World Development Indicators."

AASHTO SAYS:

"We admire the IRF's emphasis on safety and transportation best practices, and we continue to value the IRF's advocacy and overall mission, 'Better roads. Better World'."

THE OECD SAYS:

"The IRF World Road Statistics publication is an invaluable resource for understanding the importance of roads worldwide."

. the only comprehensive, international statistical picture of road and inland transport

. an invaluable reference tool for assessing worldwide trends and benchmarking performance against 200 countries

. for the first time, 12 years of historical data

Published by the International Road Federation (IRF), the World Road Statistics (WRS) is the only universal source of strategic data on road networks, traffic and inland transport.

It's an invaluable reference tool for anyone analysing and reporting trends in subject areas like road safety, traffic volumes and vehicle usage, or for benchmarking performance in key indicators like road expenditure, energy consumption and emissions.

Organisations like the United Nations and the World Bank, as well as government agencies, academia and business, regularly turn to the WRS for its detailed statistical profile.

Patron Sponsor:

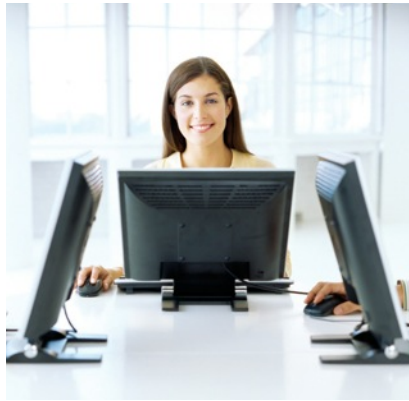

To mark the 50th year of publication in 2013, the International Road Federation and Patron Sponsor Michelin are producing a special 50th Anniversary Edition of the WRS that includes 12 years of data, providing a comprehensive statistical picture of international road and land transport from the start of the millennium.

This specially packaged edition will include the two-volume hard copy, a 'soft copy' as well as Excel data files on CD-ROM.

Whether you're a long-time user of the WRS or a first-time purchaser, this is the one edition not to miss out on.

THE IEA SAYS:

"We congratulate the IRF for this 50th Anniversary edition of its World Road Statistics, which have been especially valuable in the IEA's analysis of global land transport infrastructure requirements to 2050."

THE IRTU SAYS:

"The IRF World Road Statistics are an essential complement to our own studies and have a well-deserved reputation as a comprehensive and up-to-date source of key road infrastructure and traffic data. Together, they serve as vital tools for the development of sustainable, fact-based transport policies worldwide."

ARRB GROUP SAYS:

"Tools like the IRF World Road Statistics help the National Interest Services (NIS) program, which ARRB Group coordinates, support an informed Australian land transport community."
